Install the web export templates

Digital Technologies · School and personal computers

You will

- install the files Godot needs to export a game for the web
- check Godot is ready to export

You need

- your Godot project open (see the guide Make a Godot project)
- an internet connection: the download is large

Before you start

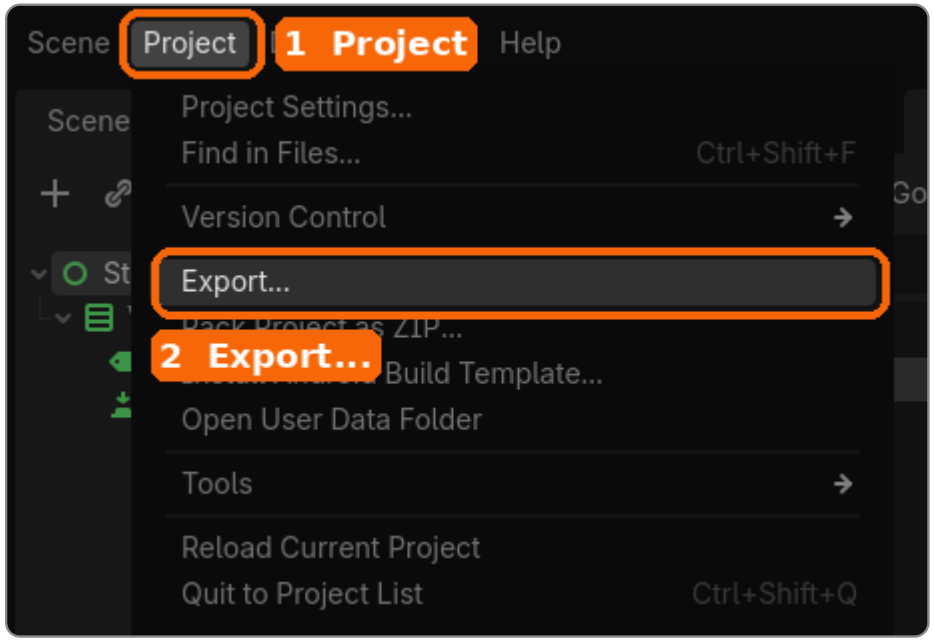

- Do this when Godot says "No export template found". You only need the Web templates to put your game on itch.io.
- The templates belong to your Godot version, so a new Godot version needs them again.

 Click here  Look here

1

Godot › Project menu

Click Project › Export...

2

Godot › Export

Click Add...

Click Web.

Already have Web in the list? Click it instead.

3

Godot › Export › Web

Look for the red message at the bottom.

Click Manage Export Templates.

The red message means the templates aren't installed yet.

4

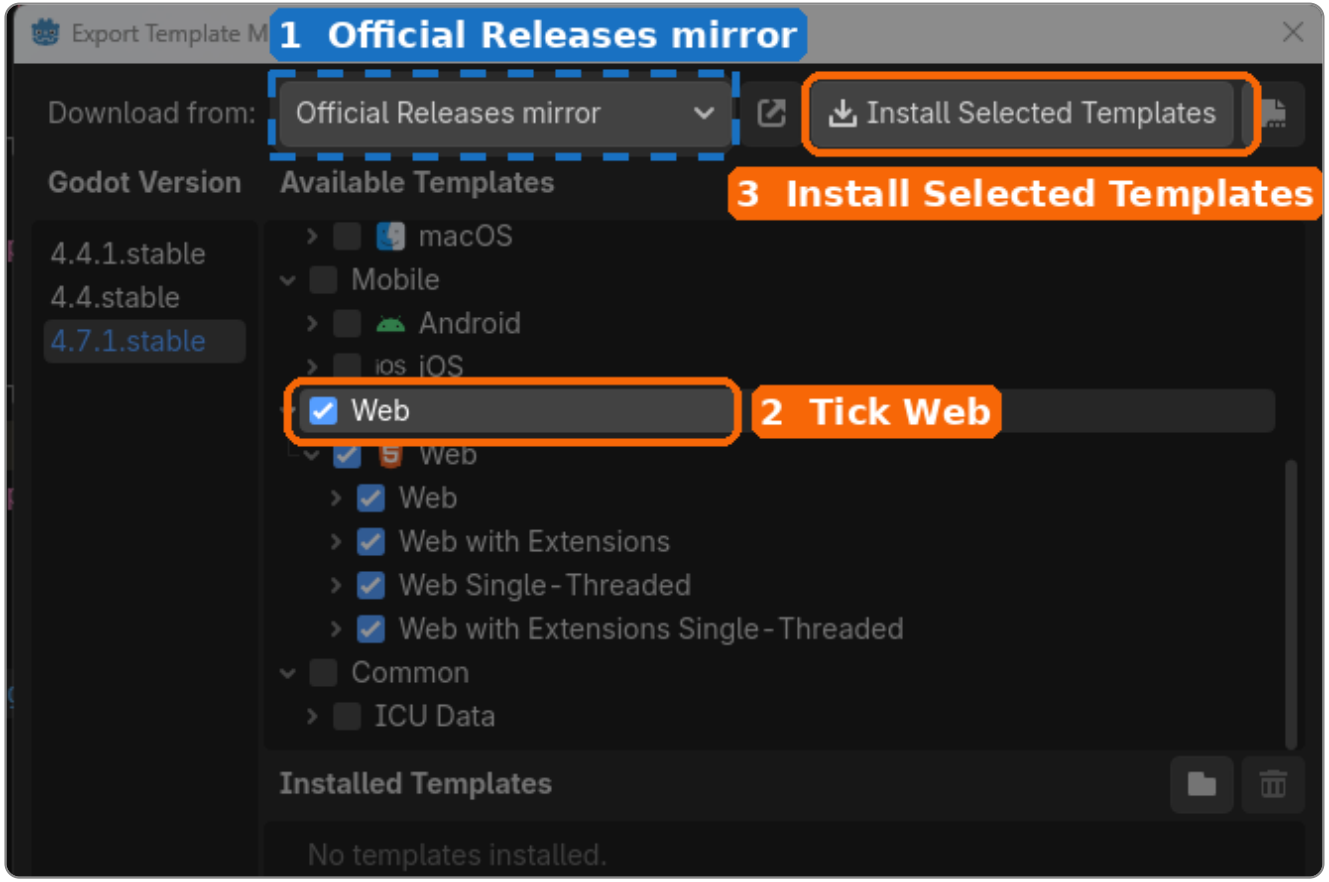

Godot › Export Template Manager

Check Download from says Official Releases mirror. Choose it if it's blank.

Under Available Templates, tick Web.

Click Install Selected Templates.

Want to export a Windows game too? Tick Windows as well, or click Install All Templates.

5

Godot › Export Template Manager

Wait while the templates download.

This can take a few minutes. Keep Godot open.

If something goes wrong
The download fails: try again, or choose a different mirror in Download from. Still failing? Ask your kaiako.

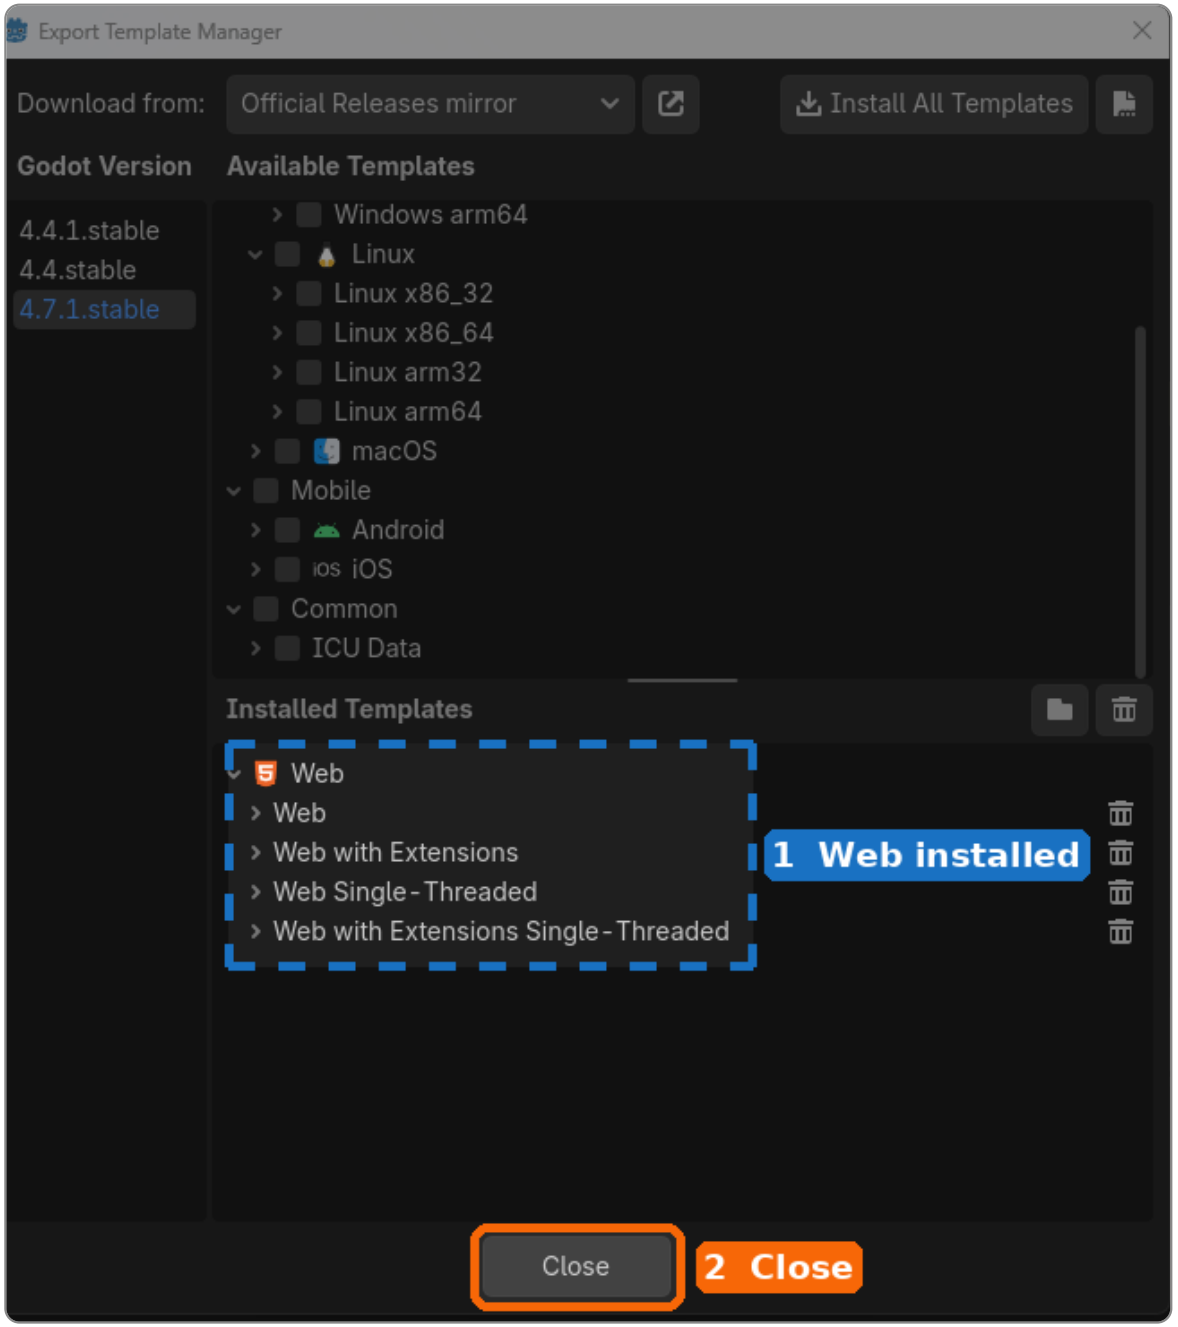

6

Godot › Export Template Manager

Check Web is under Installed Templates.

Click Close.

> Check: Web appears under Installed Templates.

7

Godot › Export

Click Web in the Presets list.

Check the red message has gone.

Click Close.

Godot is now ready to export your game for the web.

> Check: the bottom of the window has no red message.

Next

Export your game and upload it (see the guide Export your game and upload it to itch.io).

On another computer

Each computer and each Godot version needs its own templates. If the red message comes back, install them again.
